District Court of the United States, District of Maine.

In the matter of JAMES A. MONROE, Bankrupt, IN BANKRUPTCY.

This is to give notice that a petition has been presented to the Court [illegible] day of Oct., 1877, by James A. Monroe, of [illegible], a Bankrupt, individually and as a member of the firm of Foss & Monroe, praying that he may be decreed to have a full discharge from all his debts, individual and copartnership, provable under the Bankrupt Act, and upon reading said petition,

It is ordered by the Court that a hearing be had upon the same on the first Monday of January, A. D. 1878, before the Court in Portland, in said District, at 10 o'clock A. M., and that notice thereof be published in the Bangor Daily Whig and Courier and the Piscataquis Observer newspapers printed in said District, once a week for three successive weeks, and once in the weekly Bangor Courier, the last publication to be thirty days at least before the day of hearing, and that all creditors who have proved their debts and other persons in interest, may appear at said time and place and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

WM. P. PREBLE,
Clerk of District Court for said District.

THE OCEAN CARRYING TRADE

HOW STEAMERS HAVE CROWDED OUT THE SAILING TONNAGE

To the Editor of the Whig and Courier:

WINTERPORT, Nov. 7, 1877.

Many years since a distinguished [illegible] man of Bangor [illegible] its citizens on some public occasion, expressed [illegible] satisfaction [illegible] short sentence: "Wood and iron are taking the place of bone and muscle." The improvement of [illegible] the invention of new machinery and its application to every department of industry, from the farm to the watch, has progressed rapidly, until the present time, and the thought of Dr. Hedge so beautifully expressed thirty years since or more may be applied to the present by a slight grammatical change—Wood and iron have taken the place of bone and muscle, and here [illegible] may be found a very effective influence [illegible] scarcity of employment for laboring men and consequently low wages.

Ship owners are complaining of a scarcity of [illegible] for their ships, and we may look for the cause in the fact that the [illegible] with [illegible] taken the place of wind [illegible] In confirmation of this and its effects upon the American merchant [illegible] and consequently upon American seamen, please notice the accompanying [illegible] of the Atlantic fleet of steamships, for which I am indebted to the well known and popular house of Messrs. [illegible] P. [illegible] & Co. of New York.

I direct the attention of your readers to [illegible] very notable fact that only [illegible] of this large fleet are American ships, and [illegible] by American captains and sailors.

MEMORANDUM OF STEAMERS TRADING BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND EUROPE

[illegible]

We estimate that these steamers can carry in a given time equal to 1[illegible]00 sailing ships of 1000 tons register each.

[illegible] does not include the steamers between Canada and Europe, nor those running to Asia, the West Indies, South America, nor the [illegible] engaged in coast wise trade.

Eight of the Atlantic fleet sailed from the port of New York in one day recently. The following memorandum of articles making up their combined cargo:

Grain	[illegible] Bush
Cotton	4,000 Bales
Bacon	[illegible] Boxes
Cheese	1,000
Lard	2,000 Tierces
Butter	1,000 Packages
Ivory Nuts	[illegible] Bags
Apples	1,000 Bbls
Hops	1,000 Bales
Flour	[illegible] Bbls
Canned Meats	[illegible] Cases
Fresh Beef	1,600 Quarters
[illegible]	77 Tons
Salt [illegible]	1[illegible] Tierces
Tobacco	[illegible] Hhds
do	2[illegible] Tierces
do	1[illegible] Cases
do	41[illegible] Serons

Grass seed [illegible] quantities.

This does not look like very dull times in New York, to say nothing of the sailing ships and their cargoes that may have left at the same time, and this from the single port of New York, the principle port. It is true, but when we take into consideration the exports of American products shipped from all the other Atlantic and Pacific ports, to say nothing of the St. Lawrence, down which river large quantities of products from the Western States reach the European markets, we gain some slight idea of the variety and enormous quantity of agricultural products exported from our own country.

STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin

Of the appropriations of the Lewiston City Council for the present year there are at this date the following balances on [illegible] and Abatement $5000, contingent fund $6707, highways $4595, interests $21,095, night watch and police $4576, sidewalks and crossings $2102, schools $1541, state tax $28,463, support of poor $3109.

Sunday morning during the severe gale a house on Centre street, Auburn, owned by Frank Allen and occupied by a family, was lifted from its foundation and landed about four feet distant.

Aroostook

The North Star alleges that twenty convicted rum sellers in Aroostook remain unsentenced because the county attorney refuses to have them brought before the court for sentence.

There was one inch of snow fell Oct. 25th, the first snow this fall in Sherman. Also one inch of snow fell Wednesday evening, Oct. 31st.——Harvesting is closed and farmers are busy plowing and clearing for the next year's crop. There has not been freezing enough as yet to hinder plowing. Mills have shut down for want of water.

Messrs. Pine, Merrill & Libby [illegible] manufacturing starch last week, having made about one hundred tons, and using about [illegible]000 bushels of potatoes for which they paid the farmers about $[illegible] nearly all in cash. They are pleased with the quality of the starch and with the farmers.

The lumber prospect in Aroostook, says the Press correspondent, is very good. [illegible]

The potato crop was light and starch low for the farmers who contracted to [illegible] potatoes to the factory. Not far from 100 tons of starch were made [illegible] Messrs. Frye, Gilman & Milliken, to erect a starch factory in Patten next season. [illegible]

THE TRAVESTY OF TRUTH.

"Like one,
Who having, unto truth, by telling of it,
Made such a sinner of his memory,
To credit his own lie."—Shak.

It would be as reasonable to seek to make sense out of the ravings of a lunatic asylum as to look for coherency or consistency in the speeches and editorials in defence of the surrender policy. We have waded through a great many of them, and without exception they are a mush and gush of rhetoric having no more relevance to facts and no more intelligible meaning than one of Daniel Pratt's harangues. As a specimen here is one of the opening remarks of Mr. Nathan Appleton, an ardent policy man, at a meeting in Boston on Saturday evening before election:

The bloody shirt has, thank heaven, been sent to the wash and come back white as the wings of a dove of peace.

Now isn't that pretty? But what does it mean? Is it a fact that the "bloody shirt" has been cleansed "white as the wings of a dove of peace?" Where and what has been the expiation of the ghastly catalogue of political butcheries in the South? What one of all the murderers of the thousands of loyal innocent people of the South has ever been brought to justice? Where, in all the length and breadth of that section, has public sentiment demanded retribution on the Democratic perpetrators of fiendish outrage? What atonement has "washed" the scarlet clots from the "bloody shirt" of Senator Twitchell of Louisiana, whose armless and almost legless wreck was supported beside the coffin of his sister, driven to the grave by the massacre of her kindred. What Southern hand has washed the "bloody shirt" which wrapped the mutilated form of Judge Chisolm, of Mississippi, as he gasped away his life, riddled with the bullets of a mob of "chivalry?" What act of penitence or token of remorse has bleached the bloodstains from those little garments in which his boy fell, shot to death by his father's assassins? What visitation of summary and condign vengeance has wiped from the sweet face of that heroic young daughter, Cornelia Chisolm, the black mark of the blow from a brutal Southern fist, or bleached from her winding-sheet the bright, red blood of martyrdom?

Who has been hanged, imprisoned or even reprimanded for the awful massacres at Coushatte, Colfax, Vicksburg and elsewhere throughout the South, where the corpses of loyal men were piled up to rot in their "bloody shirts"? In what court of justice or Southern popular tribunal have the "bloody shirts" of the defenceless men butchered deliberately at Hamburg been washed "white as the wings of a dove of peace?" What has the South done to vindicate outraged humanity, or to expunge the record of barbarities that have shocked the civilized world? Will the eloquent and metaphorical Mr. Nathan Appleton tell us?

No, he and his coadjutors will not tell the truth about the Southern situation, because it would brand the policy of surrender as an infamous betrayal of principles and pledges—because it would turn their gushing platitudes to horrible mockery upon their lips. But we will tell him, that looking to the South we see no olive branch extending, but in its stead unrepentant and triumphant revolutionists snatching the power conferred by a Republican Administration and using it to trample down the last vestige of political liberty in the States conquered for equal rights by the soldiers of the Union. Instead of seeking to wash away the stains of the "bloody shirt" they glory in the deeds which have intimidated a National Administration into unconditional surrender, and they march into the halls of Congress with the demand that their right to butcher people within their Sovereign States shall no longer be questioned by the National Government.

Has Mississippi wooed the "white dove of peace" to come and build its nest amid the graves of the murdered Chisolm family? Let the answer be given by the damning facts of the enthusiastic re-election of the Governor who refused the widow's prayer for protection against the assassins of her husband and children, and the selection of one of the leaders of the mob to be popularly rewarded by election as Sheriff of Kemper County!

Has South Carolina vindicated the laws of God and man, outraged by the massacre at Hamburg? Have the people of that State even manifested a desire to free themselves from complicity in that horror? Let the truth answer that Democratic South Carolina stands arrogantly to-day, knocking at the door of the Senate Chamber of the United States, and demanding a seat in the highest branch of the National Legislature for her chief of assassins, to whom the designation of "Hamburg Butler" has been fixed as the brand of Cain.

It is monstrous that such crimes against liberty, against law, against civilization, against humanity, should be publicly condoned in speech and writing throughout the North, while the only attitude of the perpetrators is that of insolent demand for immunity and a recognition of their right to continue the persecution and butchery of all who are obnoxious to them, without interference or redress by the National power. It is shameful that men of Massachusetts, which still boasts of the "Cradle of Liberty," should be the most eager to do homage to ruffianly might, and first to abandon the oppressed to the despotism of the champions of Slavery and graduates of Treason. When we hear of such men trying to hide under garlands of rhetoric the lawless disfranchisement of a people, making a flippant phrase of atrocities at which Christendom has stood aghast, and picturing a paradise of liberty and patriotism in that section where National authority is impudently defied and State Constitution and laws trampled down by armed leagues, we feel impelled to quote to them the language of the Prophet:

"For they have healed the hurt of the daughter of my people slightly, saying, Peace, peace; when there is no peace."

WHAT PLEASES THE DEMOCRATS.

We trust that the Boston Advertiser and Journal, in the exuberance of their claims that the plurality for Rice in Massachusetts constitutes a "national triumph" for the President's policy, will not overlook the fact that the leading Democratic organs are quite as ready and anxious to accept that interpretation. Recognizing the "Southern policy" as identical with that advocated by the Democracy for years, the Democratic papers are almost as much pleased with a "policy victory" on a Republican ticket in Massachusetts, as with a "home-rule triumph" in New York and Pennsylvania by Democratic votes. They understand that the "policy" is the absolute surrender of Republican principles and that its inevitable result is the disintegration of the Republican party. Hence we find the leading organs of Democracy expressing their satisfaction in such paragraphs as these:

[From the Boston Post, Dem.]

Gov. Rice's election has a bright side. The Republican speakers and papers, and the Independent press from the start urged upon the people the necessity of voting for Rice as the special friend and representative of the President and his policy, claiming that in no other way could the voice of Massachusetts be "heard" most effectively abroad. From this standpoint, adding to the Hayes votes given to Rice those cast for Gaston, all of whose friends are national men, and we have the pleasing spectacle of presenting to the country the first New England State to declare for peace and concord with the South, and of showing conclusively that the old Bay State has at last been redeemed from a sectional provincialism to which for more than half a generation she has been wedded.

[From the New York World, Dem.]

The Democrats, while they began their declaration of principles with a resolution against the frauds of the last election, were hearty in their support of civil-service reform and of the President's Southern policy. Their sweeping victory, therefore, in Pennsylvania, like their victory in New York, must be accepted not only as a triumph of the Democratic party, but as a triumph of the Administration, which has secured the suffrages of Pennsylvania, not, as in Massachusetts, by the help of its own party already dominant in the State, but by the indorsement of a hostile organization which had to fight its way to power against a recognized adverse majority.

THE RESULT IN MASSACHUSETTS.

[From the Concord Monitor.]

The good fortune which has attended the public career of Gov. Rice did not desert him in yesterday's contest. Had the election taken place two weeks earlier, his defeat would have been inevitable, but the new tactics and the new vigor infused into the canvass during the closing week by the leaders of the Old Guard Republicans turned the tide and snatched victory from what threatened to be an overwhelming reverse. But for the fidelity to party of the sterling Republicans whose sentiments were outraged by the Worcester platform and whose opinions were ridiculed and in every way reprobated by the pharisee press, we should not see the inflation and the doughface Democrats of the North, and the bulldozers of the South throwing up their hats over a Republican defeat in Massachusetts. As it is, the escape is a narrow one and the victory only partial.—Rice ought to have had, and with a genuine Republican platform would have had, instead of a plurality of 15,000 a majority of 30,000. This cannot be doubted. It is the sober truth. And yet we see nominally Republican newspapers proclaiming an escape from defeat in a State where Republican majorities have averaged for the last fifteen years 15,000 or more as a victory for and a vindication of that course on the part of the National Administration which has annihilated Republicanism in the Southern States and given the entree to the White House to men whose hands are reeking with the blood of the freedmen slain for attempting to assert rights the whole nation is pledged to maintain for them.—Oh! Shame, where is thy blush!

"This election," says the Journal, "is a significant victory because it has been won in the first State where the Republican party has unqualifiedly and cordially indorsed the policy of President Hayes." We read the lesson differently. We read, first, that but for the rally of the Old Guard who despise the "policy," Massachusetts would have been arrayed on the side of rum, robbery, and reaction; second, that the equivalent of nearly 30,000 votes had to be overcome in consequence of that indorsement, and the failure to insert a prohibitory plank, to say nothing of the thousands who refused to vote at all in consequence of the indorsement alone. For it is clear enough that, of the 15,000 votes cast for Pitman, nine-tenths would have been given to Rice had the platform been of the stalwart kind like that in Maine, in Iowa, in Kansas, or even in Minnesota. But it is in perfect accordance with the surrender tactics to claim the result in Massachusetts as a policy victory, and it would have been the same had Rice's plurality been only 50. It is a clear case of idol worship, and as such must be treated. The astute managers, however, will not be deceived, although they may pretend to be, in order the better to cover their retreat from an untenable position.

CARD.

An advertisement appears in the COMMERCIAL setting forth the advantages offered by the Penobscot Mutual Relief Association, and reflecting somewhat upon the management of the CONN. MUTUAL LIFE INS. CO. of which I am the General Agent.

In order that the Public may have an opportunity to discriminate between the promises of this three-months old scheme and the results of the above named company whose 32d annual statement is about to be made, I hereby invite the officers of the Penobscot Mutual Relief Association to a public discussion of the plans proposed by them, and the system of insurance as practised by the Conn. Mutual Life Ins. Co., of Hartford. In this way the public may be able to decide which is the true mutual plan." I will bear the expense of City Hall for said purpose, the time to be announced after the acceptance of this invitation.

PERISTALTIC LOZENGES.
The effects of COSTIVENESS
When long continued are pains in the head, dizziness, nausea or sickness at the stomach, general uneasiness in the abdominal region, congestion of the liver, and hence an impeded circulation of the blood, colic, and especially the PILES.
The grand proximate cause of Dyspepsia is debility of the stomach. The torpidity of the liver is apparent from the small quantity of bile discharged from that organ and also by a dull pain on the right side. Under whichever form of DYSPEPSIA.
Appears there is always languor or debility, exertion fatigues the pulse is weak, the sleep disturbed, the extremities cold, the tongue for the most part furred or covered with a creamy mucous in the morning. No person with a constipated or irregular state of the bowels can have sound health.
It is evident, that some gentle laxative, slightly stimulant to the mucous membrane of the intestines, joined with a tonic, that increases the secretions of the liver and gradually strengthening the stomach, must be a reasonable combination and reach the case. That this combination will do; for proof of which we are happy to be able to refer those heretofore disappointed, to the most reliable physicians, who have long used this remedy in their practice; and also to every apothecary by whom the Peristaltic Lozenges are sold.
These Lozenges will repair the mischief caused by the excessive use of those "Patent Pills," with which the country has for years been flooded.
They are so agreeable to the taste, and convenient in form, that children eat them readily after rejecting the usual nauseous remedies. In those symptoms supposed to indicate the presence of Worms, they are a proper remedy.
Price 30 and 60 cents. For sale by druggists, or by mail on receipt of price in [illegible] stamp or money.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

FORTY FIFTH CONGRESS Special Session

Senate

WASHINGTON, Nov 9.

Mr Dawes from the Committee [illegible] bill [illegible] reported favorably on the bill [illegible] the taking of certain parcels of land for public use at the intersection of Pennsylvania and Maryland Avenues on the west front of the capitol grounds. After [illegible] further consideration was [illegible]. Among the bills introduced [illegible] the following: Authorizing [illegible] of customs duties [illegible] The Vice-President appointed Kirk[illegible] member of the Committee on [illegible] Ingalls of Kansas, absent [illegible] Committee on Elections [illegible] of the Committee on Rail[illegible] to fill vacancies.

Mr [illegible] submitted a resolution de[illegible] Wadleigh of N H chairman of [illegible] Committee on Elections vice Morton [illegible] The Senate at one o'clock went [illegible] executive session and finally adjourned [illegible]

House

[illegible] was opened with prayer by [illegible] of Washington

Mr Clymer offered a resolution that [illegible] Harrison of Georgia be the [illegible] of the House.

Mr [illegible] of Ohio offered an amendment substituting Rev James G Butler [illegible] Chaplain [illegible] objected to and the original [illegible] was adopted.

A resolution directing the Committee on [illegible] to inquire into [illegible] of appointing a committee to ex[illegible] the charges against the manage[illegible] of the Mare Island Navy Yard was referred.

Mr [illegible] chairman of the Committee [illegible] the Secretary of State [illegible] the Paris Exhibition [illegible] for an appropriation at $[illegible] committed. Also a communication from the Secretary [illegible] in reference to the distribution of the Mexican award. Recommitted.

Mr Atkins chairman of the Appropriation Committee reported a bill for the settlement of the account of workingmen for [illegible] eight hours labor. Recommitted.

Mr W[illegible] presented a petition to [illegible] for completion of the North[illegible] Railroad. Referred.

[illegible] then went into Committee [illegible] on the army [illegible]

Mr [illegible] of [illegible] said the Republicans [illegible] in favor of [illegible] 000 [illegible] As for himself he [illegible] any policy looking toward [illegible] the Constitution [illegible] own territory.

Mr [illegible] of Ohio said it was not the [illegible] Republican side of the House [illegible] Neither did they desire to [illegible] could the President have [illegible] to respond to calls of Governors [illegible] Legislatures of States [illegible] call [illegible] constitutionally as they were last summer from West Virginia and Pennsylvania? All propo[illegible] were voted [illegible] majorities [illegible]

[illegible] had been disclosed in the debate [illegible] that if the bill was passed in its [illegible] would [illegible] army [illegible] Military Affairs [illegible] to the question whether the President's policy was the Democratic policy [illegible] the Democratic policy was to [illegible] opposition [illegible] South to [illegible] rebellion when it commenced [illegible] the Democratic party [illegible] be a clamoring for the withdrawal of troops. When the Democratic party met at Chicago in 1864 that the war [illegible] suppression of the rebellion was a [illegible] that party had had a majority in [illegible] it would put upon the army bill [illegible]

After some remarks by Mr Hewitt of N Y, the question was taken on Blackburn's [illegible] restricting the force of the army to $15,000 and it was rejected—[illegible]

Mr Blackburn then asked the Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations to [illegible] the amendment to be offered in the House before calling the previous question so as to test the sense of the House by the yeas and nays.

Mr Atkins—As Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations I must decline.

Mr Blackburn—Then I trust the previous question on the bill will never be seconded.

The question was taken on Schleicher's amendment to strike out the clause restricting the army to its present force. The vote on this count by the Chairman was [illegible] to 136. A vote was then taken by tellers and the amendment was adopted—[illegible] 114.

Mr Atkins moved to amend by inserting the proviso that no money appropriated by the act shall be paid for recruiting the army beyond [illegible] 000 men including Indian scouts and hospital stewards.

Mr Conger made the point of order that the amendment was new legislation and was not reported by a committee.

The Chairman overruled the point of order but the amendment was rejected—121 to 1[illegible]

Mr Townsend of Ill moved to strike out the entire clause appropriating $75,000 for the expenses of recruiting. Rejected.

Mr Cabell of Va., moved to amend the clause by reducing the appropriation for recruiting to $45,000 and limiting the force to 2[illegible] 000. Rejected—118 to 123.

Mr Clark of Mo., moved to reduce the appropriation for recruiting to $25,000. [illegible]

Mr Tucker of Va moved to insert "and no money appropriated by this act shall be paid for recruiting the army beyond the number of enlisted men including scouts and hospital stewards actually on the army rolls on the 1st of November, 1877, except for cavalry service and for employment exclusively in the defence of the Mexican and Indian frontiers and so far only as may be necessary for that purpose and no further."

Mr Conger made a point of order that the amendment proposed new legislation and was not in the interest of economy. The point of order was sustained.

Mr Tucker then modified his amendment by adding the words, "but nothing herein contained shall authorize an increase of a cavalry company beyond a number authorized by law," and in this shape it was declared in order. The amendment was agreed to by 133 to 11[illegible]

Mr Banning moved to add to Tucker's amendment the words, "provided nothing herein contained shall authorize recruiting the army beyond 25,000 enlisted men." Adopted.

Mr Crittenden of Mo., offered another amendment looking to the reduction of force and made some remarks eulogistic of Col Miles and rather [illegible] complimentary to Gen Howard, who was said to have been acting as Commissary for Chief Joseph. He did not know anything about that, but thought Joseph never had been able to overtake Howard to get anything from him.

Mr Giddings of Tex., explained how it was that the Representatives from his State were voting against their own side of the House against any reduction of the Army. The condition of things on the Rio Grande frontier required them to resort to every means to see [illegible] protection.

Mr Maginnis of Montana spoke of the unprotected condition of the Indian frontier. He said over 1[illegible]0 men were killed last year in Montana by invading Indians. He opposed an increase of the cavalry force at the expense of the infantry and said the infantry had won every fight against the Indians for the last five years. He believed Sitting Bull was now preparing to organize the Northwestern tribes and if [illegible] succeeded he would cross the frontier with 10,000 warriors and sweep everything before him.

Mr Harrison of Ill [illegible] Florida [illegible] Returning Board [illegible] Bill would not have been allowed to [illegible]

The Committee accordingly rose without action [illegible] division on the amendment [illegible] the Republicans were left without [illegible]

Mr Hewitt presented a petition from the National Board of Trade in regard to the navigation laws. Referred.

Mr O'Neill presented a memorial of the same body for light [illegible] removal of wrecks etc. Referred.

The House at 4 o'clock adjourned until to-morrow.

THE NEW YORK SENATOR AGGRESSIVE AND CONFIDENT

Senator Conkling Charges the Hayes Men with Defeating the Republican Ticket

NEW YORK Nov 9. In an interview [illegible] Senator Conkling [illegible] that Cornell [illegible] the State [illegible] elected from his District [illegible] Democrats who voluntarily joined the rebel army [illegible] to the supporters of the National Administration. Mr Conkling said he believed [illegible] District was carried [illegible] by the [illegible] energies of Tammany Hall, combined with the lofty cohorts of the highly respectable three hundred Republicans of New York [illegible] the latter having [illegible] Tammany Hall has [illegible] office holders to draw upon and every [illegible] two thousand [illegible] twenty five dollars apiece. Ellis H R[illegible] voted the Democratic ticket and the Hayes interest [illegible] uniformly [illegible] voted with the Democrats.

Evarts Personal Hostility

He further said: From the time Hayes came into office and appointed a Democrat to the Cabinet the principal labor of Mr Evarts [illegible] has been to withdraw Republican support from me. Evarts told a gentleman some time ago that the reform movement of the Administration so far as New York was concerned, was to break up the chieftainship and [illegible] the officers of the Administration at the last election were removals of the principal office holders in New York whom I match them to duplicate [illegible] Was that a [illegible] behavior towards a Republican seeking to extricate this State from the Democracy? If we had received the Hayes vote in New York or even a fair portion the State would be Republican to-day.

The Civil Service Order.

Of the civil service order Conkling said it was fictional in its intent [illegible] made in the interest of envious and presuming little men. Sherman goes out to Ohio and makes speeches in defiance of it, McCrary goes to Iowa and manages a convention despite the order, and finally Devens, who is a pretty good sort of a fellow or has been in the past, writes to Massachusetts and says that the order meant itself to be disobeyed and that the way to obey it was to violate it. He said [illegible] at the Massachusetts election shows only how well real party men behave. The men who disliked the policy and could see no honesty in the President's position on the Southern question, nevertheless walked to the polls and cast their ballots for Republican candidates. The Hayes men also voted in Massachusetts but in New York State I charge that the Hayes element were not only indifferent to the election but they voted the Democratic ticket by hosts. The State is Democratic to-day by the act of the supporters of the President. If there has been any time within the past ten years when the Republican party was worth preserving in the interest of the tax payers particularly it is now.

The Three Elements of the Democratic Party.

The Democratic party has three elements in it—first, there is the South, arrogant, advancing driven on by Southern constituents who have lost everything—They were compelled to repudiate the Confederate debt and to strike off pensions to their soldiers. Why should not they take as much as possible from the North? In the light of human nature they are hardly to be blamed for looking upon the Federal Treasury as something which has been used to their disadvantage but can now be employed to liquidate the balance. Then we have the East, of which New York is the Democratic citadel. Here it is Tammany Hall, John Kelly and the Canal Ring. This is another predatory element. In the last place the Western Democracy is composed of two great wings—inflation and agrarianism. The Republican party alone at such a time can properly represent the property holder and the tax payer. The Southern element being powerful in Democratic caucus can compel the whole party to support their measures—That is why I look upon the wealthy men of New York as foolish. They are to be the sufferers if this nation passes into the hands of the party controlled by the South and ruled in the North by evil, ignorant and socialistic elements.

The Southern Policy

Relative to the President's Southern policy Mr Conkling said: "There is no considerable element in the Republican party which objects to the removal of troops from Southern States. I have made no objection on that score, but all that was required of him was to take out the troops and nothing else. He had no right to make a bargain or compromise with the Legislature of a State in the interests of the Presidency. His interfering with a State by non-compromise, or bargain was as much a violation of the law as if he had interfered with troops and by arms."

Reporter—Nevertheless, Senator a large element of opposition to Mr Hayes comes from the Radical Northern element?

Conkling—Very probably. Although the North are substantial people who are like Miles Standish in their devotion to the origin [illegible] sympathies of the Republican party is a free Northern party. These people do not object so much to withdrawing [illegible] force from the South [illegible] to the conspirators con[illegible] of Mr Hayes to the Presidency by the vote of Louisiana and Mr Packard [illegible] Every man knows that on the face of those returns Packard was more elected than Hayes by 3,000 or 4,000 votes. You cannot give [illegible] the returns in any form that will not give more legality to Packard as Governor of Louisiana than to Hayes as President.

The Democrats in the Cabinet

I [illegible] the [illegible] all the virtues of reform in the office which he has [illegible] of the [illegible] general [illegible] record [illegible] favors to the other side. The President has [illegible] Democratic Cabinet—Devens always [illegible] to office in Massachusetts on the Democratic ticket. However [illegible] Republican [illegible] Schurz took himself out of the Republican party years ago. Key is a Democrat. I am sure that nobody counts Evarts a Republican. The Democrats were so certain of the contrary they proposed to nominate him for Governor of this State. I have no faith in a President whose only distinction is [illegible] gratitude to the men who voted for him and the party which gave him its fealty. In the domain and forum of honor that case of Hayes' infidelity stands forward and challenges him. It is felt by honest men all over the country. He smiles and showers on the opposition the proofs of a disturbed mind.

The Penalty of Democratic Ascendancy

[illegible] Democracy in the country will [illegible] excessive [illegible] He instanced the passage of the river and harbor appropriation bill at the close of the last Congress amounting to 8,[illegible]000, which President Grant vetoed because there were good things in it but all embargoed $3,000,000 of the expenditure. Now I am told that $3,000,000 have been paid out since Grant left office. The Southerners [illegible] rumored [illegible] and money [illegible] these rivers levees harbors public buildings—everything suggests rehabilitation and expense. I have no words of anger for the South but through my position as a New York Senator I can plainly see that our country [illegible] voting against the Republican ticket will one day [illegible] under the infliction of National taxation encouraged at Washington.

Another Reference to Louisiana

Referring again to Louisiana, Conkling said: Was it consistent for the President [illegible] Louisiana bargain with that man Nicholls, who by [illegible] and by the [illegible] I hold a traitor to his State Government this dealing with usurpers to gain the summit of power [illegible] practice in our country. [illegible] for a President [illegible] himself elected would have [illegible] were ready [illegible] He would have taken his office manfully, graciously and inspired respect without bargaining for it. All he had to do was to withdraw the troops and to that no one would have objected. So long as Mr Hayes [illegible] in the Presidential chair [illegible] Republicans will never look on him with [illegible] Packard disowned [illegible] and thus it looks on.

Close of the Interview

The conversation closed with some reference to Gov [illegible] and to Gen Dix [illegible] to kill [illegible] because Dix believed [illegible] responsible for his defeat by Tilden. Mr Conkling's remarks about the President were never personally disrespectful. He talked around the [illegible] and [illegible] severe on the result of the crooked course [illegible] failing to fulfill obligation too willingly contract [illegible] were to [illegible] Conkling was [illegible] aggressive, positive and [illegible]

The Indians killed were provided with reservation blankets and other articles furnished by United States government. The scalps were taken to Del Norte [illegible] Mexico as was the stock which was identified by the owners of the animals. Three bucks and nine squaws escaped. In another column will be found the advertisement of the Boston Button Store. Mr Tucker [illegible] at his famous [illegible] prepared to attend to business and [illegible] all who are in want of fashionable goods [illegible] at the lowest possible price.

Buffalo Bill's Company had rather a rough passage from Rockland yesterday. They chartered the steam tug Hurricane and started about day break and after having [illegible] every disagreeable [illegible] they arrived in this city about noon.

The ladies of the Union street Methodist church are making preparations for a good time at the vestry in the shape of a [illegible] concert and supper. The decided success of their past efforts will no doubt insure success in this [illegible] entertainment may be [illegible]

The [illegible] Club [illegible] meeting to-morrow [illegible] Besides the [illegible] choir [illegible] Rev Mr [illegible] of Damariscotta and Rev Mr [illegible] of this city have promised to speak. [illegible] Howe of the [illegible] Club and Vice President Seavey of the [illegible] will also take part in the exercises.

BRADFORD. Our correspondent [illegible] writes: On last Monday night Mr A H Nickerson of East Corinth called at the residence of [illegible] Kingsbury of [illegible] and on leaving he drove [illegible] supposed [illegible] the road but the night was so intensely dark that he could not see, and his carriage came in contact with the front yard fence throwing Mr N to the ground. He escaped uninjured but one of the carriage wheels was badly damaged.

A CASE OF CONSCIENCE. A [illegible] this city yesterday received a letter [illegible] enclosed one dollar and fifty cents. In which the writer said that he had a confession to make and went on to state that some dozen or fifteen years ago the writer and another boy stole a pair of chickens from the man addressed of the value of seventy five cents and that he enclosed the amount with interest, desiring an acknowledgment of its receipt with the forgiveness of the [illegible] man. Due acknowledgment was [illegible] with full forgiveness. The loss of the chickens was never known to the loser until the payment was received.

READINGS. By referring to another column it will be seen that Mr Wm Ethelbert Lasty of London, England, will give a series of readings in Unity Hall next week. The Boston Traveller speaks as follows of his readings:

The reading of Mr W Ethelbert Lasty of certain selections from Dickens at Wesleyan Hall last evening, was a decided success and was thoroughly enjoyed by a large audience. The selections were from "Dombey and Son," and "Bardell vs. Pickwick." Mr Lasty interpreted the touching affection of little Dombey for his sister Florence with inimitable grace and tenderness, and read the death scene with such rare and delicate pathos as to deeply move the audience. In the selection of Pickwick he was equally happy in his characterization, the judge especially, being very cleverly personated.

FROM MILO. A correspondent at Milo writes: The Milo Free High School closed its fall session Thursday the 8th inst. A public examination and review of the several classes was had which was very creditable to the school and teacher. The school has been under the instruction of Mr A W Gilman, of Foxcroft, who is an experienced and successful teacher, very thorough in his instruction, with a faculty of interesting each scholar in their work.—Capt. J L Smart has started a crew of men for the woods and more are to follow soon. The lumbering business is looking up judging by teams and men we see going past this way. Four concerns from Milo are already at work, and more are expecting to follow.

CLARK AND SMALL'S INSURANCE AGENCY. This enterprising firm announce their business in a handsome two-column advertisement this morning giving a list of the Fire Insurance companies they represent with a statement of their standing. The list includes American Canadian and European companies, with an aggregate of $47,587,728 02 of assets in this country and an aggregate surplus of $1,054,477.74 above all liabilities. This agency has been successfully carried on by Mr. Clark for a number of years, and his association with Capt E. E. Small, lately United States Pension Agent for this District, constitutes a wide awake and capable firm which intends to deserve and secure a liberal increase of patronage. Their statement that since the establishment of this agency 'no person has ever lost a dollar by the failure of any of its companies to redeem its promises' would seem the most practical recommendation they could offer and they are ready to transact business with all desiring insurance at their rooms, No 1, Hatch's Block, Main street.

BUFFALO BILL. At an early hour last evening people began to assemble at Norumbega Hall and long before the entertainment commenced the hall was well filled and by 8 o'clock the galleries and rear of the hall were densely packed and nearly all of the reserved seats occupied. The evening's entertainment opened with a farce entitled "The Limerick Boy," and Mr G C Charles as Paddy Miles kept the audience in one continuous uproar of laughter until the close. The other parts were well taken. The play of May Cody or Lost and Won' is well arranged and was very enthusiastically received by the audience. The parts were all well sustained and in some scenes the acting was very fine. One of the principal features of the evening was the exhibition by the Austin Brothers and the way they will handle a rifle is truly wonderful. One of them would hold a cigar in his mouth while the other knocked the ashes from the end. Then both placed potatoes on their heads and at a signal both fired piercing the potatoes at the same time. The entire entertainment was thoroughly enjoyed and they will undoubtedly be greeted with a large audience this evening.

STEALING A MAN'S LEG. Quite a stir was caused in medical circles yesterday by a curious occurrence involving the abstraction of a man's leg. We learn of the case in this wise. On Tuesday last Dr Calvin Seavey was called to attend a man in Alton who had been under treatment by another surgeon of this city for some disease of the leg and who had preferred charge of a [illegible] against the [illegible] Dr Seavey amputated the leg brought it to this city and on Thursday evening assembled a number of the medical profession of the city including the doctor who had formerly attended the patient for an examination of the limb. A partial dissection was made by one of the surgeons present and quite a sharp controversy ensued as to the treatment in which the surgeon who had first attended the patient and [illegible] waxed [illegible] warm in dispute. Dr Seavey says he locked the limb in his office [illegible] and on Friday morning found that the door had been forced [illegible] and the leg carried off. The great conundrum among the doctors now is "Who stole that man's leg?" The [illegible] current [illegible] reported is a remarkable one [illegible] the serious and [illegible] in a very [illegible] manner.

COMMENCING YOUNG

Two Boston Boys on Their Travels are Captured by the Bangor Police

Last Thursday afternoon Marshal Low received the following despatch from James Quinn Deputy Chief of Police of Boston: Arrest John Roome [illegible] [illegible] five feet florid complexion scratches on face dark suit and dark hat. Larceny of six hundred dollars. Boy named Hayes with him. Hold and telegraph. It seems that these boys were in the employ of Messrs Wheelock Jones [illegible] of Boston and that on last Saturday [illegible] was sent out to collect a bill amounting to over $600 and after receiving the money got his chum Hayes and they started off for Lewiston where Hayes has some friends. Here they were joined by another young fellow by the name of James Coham and started for this city where they arrived last Tuesday night. They attended the races Wednesday afternoon and were at the dance Thursday night and were having a fine time when the above despatch was received in this city.

Marshal Low immediately notified his police force to be on the lookout for the boys. Yesterday morning Mr Noyes of the above-named firm arrived in the city and in company with officer Allen, who was at the cars started out to look the boys up. They went to Campbell's Hotel first where they learned that the boys had applied for board but being unable to get accommodations they went to the Bangor House and from there to the Franklin House, where they obtained board under fictitious names. On arrival at that house Mr Noyes went up to the room where he found Coham but the other boys were out and while officer Allen was out looking for them they came to the house and went up stairs to the room. Roome opened the door and entered the room but Hayes saw Mr Noyes and left the house. As soon as Roome had stepped inside the door, Mr Noyes quickly closed the door and rung the bell, when Mr Hill went up, and in a few minutes officer Allen came in and arrested the boys, and on searching them he found $430 26, and a new silver watch on Coham.

After locking the boys up the officers started out after Hayes. They went down to the boat and just before she left the wharf they saw Hayes standing up by the store-house watching for a chance to get on to the boat and arrested him and lodged him in jail with the other boys. Marshal Low immediately telegraphed to Boston that he had the boys and received an answer that officer Drew of Boston, would arrive in this city this morning and take charge of them. The case was well handled by our officers who deserve great credit for doing the work in so short a time with only a slight clue.

FROM ORONO

Grand Vocal and Instrumental Concert

A second concert for the benefit of the Methodist Society of Orono, was given at the Town Hall last Thursday evening. There were present a large and very appreciative audience. The programme was all that could be desired and the concert was in every respect a success. The exercises opened with a musical tableau "Sleep on, or a mother's reflection," the musical part of which was composed by Mr McQuown of Bangor, and it was finely presented by Mrs Mary L Palmer of Orono, Miss Ella Rowe, Mr McQuown and Dr F F Wasgatt. The cofavored us with an instrumental trio-opera without words. It was well received and in response to a hearty encore they repeated the first part.

Mr F C D Hunt better known as "Conductor Hunt" sang "Friend of the brave." Mr H is a very fine bass singer and in response to a very vigorous encore he returned and sang "Who treads the path of duty."

Mr Palmer and Mr Wasgatt then sang by special request the duett "Over the hills o'er the dale," and in [illegible] hearty applause they returned, [illegible] the audience and retired still the audience demanded a second [illegible] so they returned and repeated one verse.

Mr McQuown then played a violin solo which was worthy of the highest commendation for he certainly displayed much musical taste and skill. The applause at the close of this solo [illegible]

Mrs Wasgatt of Boston [illegible] style. The day is Done. She has [illegible] excellent voice [illegible] clear [illegible] which was most [illegible] displayed. She was loudly encored [illegible] response [illegible] she sang Angel whispers.

Messrs Hunt and Colburn [illegible] well pleased with their rich full voice and they were vigorously encored [illegible] answer to which they repeated one verse.

The brook by Miss Shaw of Machias was very sweetly sung and received a hearty encore in response to which she sang The milkmaid's marriage song.

A trio Give me a cup was then sung by Mr Allen Messrs Colburn and Hunt. Mrs Allen's vocalism was characterized by good tone [illegible] sweetness [illegible] not sacrificed [illegible] power.

Mesdames Mayo and Palmer Miss Rowe and Mr McQuown rendered good service as accompanists. The evening's entertainment concluded with the singing of Little brown church by the quartette Mesdames Wasgatt and Palmer Messrs Hunt and Colburn.

FUN FOR A DRESS REHEARSAL.

HOW THEY GET AN OPERA READY FOR THE STAGE.

The New York Graphic gives an amusing account of a dress rehearsal of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at the Fifth Avenue Theater by the Hess English Opera Troupe.

It says: It is like the taking to pieces of some ingenious toy in order to show its hidden mechanism. It is a curious mixture, also, of art, song, comedy, tragedy, with common-place every day business, chastening and correction. "Midsummer Night's Dream" is a Shakespearean opera, and involves the appearance of Shakespeare himself, Falstaff, Queen Elizabeth, Lord Latimer, an English innkeeper, attendants, and foresters.

But our dress rehearsal is subject to such odd interruptions. Now the chorus is under full headway and everything seems progressing favorably, when a stout active man in everyday and very business-like black walks from the wings briskly into this Elizabethan era of ruff and farthingale. Hear him: "No! No! No! That's not it at all. Try that scene over again!" Back go court ladies and cavalier to the obscurity of the wings. The orchestra again strikes up. The stage fills up. [illegible] an embodiment of the nineteenth century practical [illegible] darts around among that court train. He shoves a maid of honor a little to the right, a cavalier to the left and brings a girl but half made up as to dress a little more forward and [illegible] another one a little back. He corrects, shoves, prompts, [illegible] mildly, scolds [illegible]. Under headway again. This time it is [illegible] Operti the conductor, who suddenly stops the car of operatic progress. The smart tapping of his fiddle-bow is heard. "Ladies and gentlemen," he remarks, "you must—this is it—ta-ta-ta-ta—now," and they are off again. Then Falstaff has the stage all to himself. He advances [illegible] to the maestro and sings to him confidentially. Now it is the [illegible] Lord of Avon, in modern morning costume staggering and pursuing a coquettish damsel in short skirts across the garden. "Oh, that I won't do!" says the brisk manager to the girl; "he wants to kiss you and you won't let him. Make another bound [illegible] [illegible] so," and then he shows how a pretty girl should scream when pursued by a tipsy cavalier, and [illegible] to have been there himself. The corrected nymph tries it over again, conforming to directions, and the Divine Will[illegible] and kisses with that peculiar wavy motion of the arms which at rehearsal means simply that blank space to be filled in by the appropriate [illegible] during the actual performance.

Then there are pauses in which every thing comes to a dead stop, and the chorus, Falstaff, Lord Latimer and everybody look at each other, while Queen Elizabeth [illegible] and [illegible] indifferently and half wearily about. The manager and maestro are [illegible] some [illegible] between them. Shakespeare joins the colloquy and [illegible] from the footlights, while the few spectators in the dark red and tomb-like [illegible] regard the [illegible] of the bass violin, which [illegible] like a scarecrow behind the leader [illegible] the bridge of his instrument. It [illegible] again. No. Rat-tat-tat from the maestro's bow. Another [illegible] Operti is vigorously giving instructions to one [illegible] plunged obscurely in the depths of the orchestra. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Another girl is [illegible] into the extreme right of the chorus [illegible] in another direction [illegible] bringing some runaway voice to [illegible] both hands and every finger are quivering. Everybody [illegible] for [illegible] right everything, gives a wink to Lord Latimer, left, says something [illegible] fiddle-bow and lastly trains [illegible] maid of honor, lets [illegible] looks daggers at somebody in the wrong key [illegible] again—the manager [illegible] [illegible] and the manager [illegible] Falstaff and Shakespeare [illegible] heads together in earnest [illegible] it on and on [illegible] [illegible] more.

Maestro—"Eight bars back now [illegible]—two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, now—ta-ta-ta!"

Chorus move off. Manager follows them up, shoving tardy [illegible] off the stage or shooting [illegible] into their places. [illegible] Bard of Avon sings. Stops. Orchestra [illegible] ready for Bard. Ready now. Bard now not ready for orchestra. [illegible] a forester to greet with a [illegible] horn. Blows very hard. Must [illegible] through [illegible] Puts hand to ear and listens for [illegible]. Another forester in green [illegible] horn to mouth is about to blow [illegible] darts from hiding place. "All wrong! [illegible] foresters in green back to wings. Blow too soon. Enter correct [illegible] greenest one more. Blow [illegible] as before. Manager rushes at [illegible] many degrees [illegible] Enter two more foresters with [illegible] horns. They blow. No, [illegible] manager. "Go back now, all of you, and try that over again." And so the dress rehearsal goes on far into the night, and even morning, while the clock [illegible] and seem to be longing for supper, [illegible].

GRANT UNDER FIRE.

THE AMERICAN ALEXANDER [illegible] IN THE HEAT OF BATTLE—TWO [illegible] SCENES [illegible]

While I was standing by the [illegible] bridge, writes Colonel Byers to the [illegible] [illegible], watching the boys cross the bayou, I heard somebody chattering and looking round saw an officer on horseback in a major general's uniform. He dismounted and came close to the very spot where I was standing. I did not know his face, but something told me it was Grant—[illegible] Grant, at that moment the hero of the Western army. Still he stood—erect, about five feet eight, with square features, thin closed lips, brown beard, both cut short and neat. He must weigh [illegible] pounds, looks just like the soldier he is. I think he is larger than Napoleon but not much—he is not so dumpy, looks like a man in good [illegible], and the rebels think [illegible] the first time I saw Grant. I think I still possess some of the feeling that overcame me at that moment as I stood so near to one who held our lives and possibly our country in his hands. I heard him speak: "Men push right along; close up fast and hurry over." Two or three men mounted on mules attempted to wedge past the soldiers on the bridge. Grant noticed it and quietly said, "Lieutenant, send those men to the rear." Every soldier passing turned to gaze on him, but there was no further recognition. There was no McClellan begging the boys to allow him to light his cigar by theirs, or inquiring to what regiment that exceedingly line-marching company belonged. There was no Pope bullying the men for not marching faster, or officers for some trivial detail, remembered only by martinets. There was no Bonaparte, posturing for effect, no pointing to the pyramids, no calling the centuries to witness. There was no nonsense, no sentiment, only a plain business man of the Republic there for the one single purpose of getting that command across the river in the shortest time possible. On a horse near by, and among the still mounted staff, sat the general's son, a bright-looking lad of about eleven years. Fastened to his little waist by the broad yellow belt, was his father's sword—that sword on whose clear steel was soon to be engraved Vicksburg, Spottsylvania, the Wilderness and Richmond. The boy talked and jested with the bronzed soldiers near him, who laughingly inquired where we should camp, to which the young field marshal replied, "Over the river." Over the river! Ah! that night we slept with our guns in our hands, and another night, and another, saw more than one of our division camped beyond and over the river—in that last tenting ground, where the reveille was heard no more forever.

I next saw Grant on May 18, 1863, and this time at the battle of "Champion Hills" in rear of Vicksburg. We had crossed the Mississippi River at Grand Gulf and swung off east and north, had fought the battles of Port Gibson, Raymond and Jackson, and were overtaking Pemberton's army hastening to the walls of Vicksburg. It was a very hot day, and we had marched hard, slept little, and rested none. Among the magnolias on Champion Hills the enemy, 40,000 to 60,000 strong, turned on us. Sherman's corps was already engaged far on the right as we approached the field. In that overpowering Mississippi sun. Our brigade was soon in line on the edge of a meadow or open field sloping toward the woods, where the enemy were concealed and steadily firing on us. We were in the most trying position of soldiers, for regulars even—being fired on without permission to return the shots. We were standing two files deep, bearing, as patiently as we could, not a heavy but a steady fire from infantry, while an occasional cannon ball tore up the turf in front of or behind us. A good many men were falling, and the wounded were being borne to the rear of the brigade, close to an old well, whose wooden curb seemed to offer the only protection from bullets on the exposed line. "Colonel, move your men a little to the left flank," said a quiet, though commanding voice. On looking round I saw immediately behind us Grant, the Commander-in-chief, mounted on a beautiful bay mare, and followed by perhaps half a dozen of his staff. For some reason he dismounted, and most of his officers were sent back bearing orders, probably to other quarters of the field. It was Grant under fire. The rattling of musketry increased on our front and grew louder too, on the left flank. Grant had led his horse to the left, and thus kept near the company to which I belonged. He now stood leaning complacently against his favorite steed, smoking—as seemed habitual with him—the stump of a cigar. His was the only horse near the line, and must naturally have attracted some of the enemies' fire. What if he should be killed, I thought to myself, and the army left without its commander? In front of us was an enemy, behind us, were his reinforcements. For days we had been away from our base of supplies and marching inside the enemy's lines. What if Grant should be killed and we be defeated here—in such a place and at such a time? I am sure every one who recognized him wished him away, but there he stood—clear, calm and immovable. I was close enough to see his features. Earnest they were but sign of inward movement there was none. It was the same cool, [illegible] face I had seen before at the bridge, the same careful half-cynical face I afterward saw [illegible] with Bairs of [illegible].

Thirteen persons united with the Congress street [illegible] church, Portland, on Sunday, six by profession and seven by letter.

Rev. Seth W. Perkins of Montville, has received and accepted a call to the pastorate of the Free Baptist church of New Gloucester and entered upon his duties. [illegible] correspondence accordingly.

Rev. Mr. Bixby last Sabbath preached his customary annual harvest sermon in his church at Belfast. The altar was beautifully decorated with fruits and flowers, vegetables and leaves, exhibiting the generous bounty of our harvest homes. The services were very appropriate and interesting.

The Universalist society at Auson, for the past two years have supported a Sabbath school during the summer season, which has been well attended and attended success. The school for the present season closed last Sunday week. It will be opened again about the first of May next.

Rev. A. Blanchard, pastor of the Congregational church, Cumberland Mills, is closing his labors with this church to accept the position of State Missionary for his denomination. His work will be to travel at large among the feeble churches in [illegible] to keep alive these outposts of the denomination.

Rev. J. S. Richards of Dexter, preached at the Congregational church at Dover last Sabbath. The subject was "The Evils of the Day," and was a highly interesting effort. Skepticism, licentiousness, intemperance, tobacco using and other filthy and sinful practices received a [illegible] The sermon is highly spoken of.

Considerable labor has been expended at Perry's Mills in the northwest part of [illegible] for which it has been rewarded by quite a revival of interest among all classes. Quite a number of the leading citizens have been converted. Union effort is still continued and all denominations seem equally interested. There is a good prospect of organizing a Young Men's Christian Association.

The Morning Star says of Maine F. B. churches: Rev. John [illegible] has been preaching one-fourth of the time during the past season, at a White school house near Madison Center. — The interest in and about Houlton has received a quite an impetus from the visit of the Y. M. C. A. band to that county. Meetings were held in Houlton for four weeks in succession, resulting in the conversion of between forty and fifty persons.

The Mirror's [illegible] says that Rev. Dr. Thurston of Searsport commenced labor with the Congregational society in [illegible] port in June. The church numbered then [illegible] seven, and twenty-six members have been added, so that the whole number is fifty-three. Mr. Thurston has left a good [illegible] influence and good instruction and culture will no doubt progress in future. Dr. Thurston and his wife left [illegible] October 10th having [illegible] his labors [illegible] [illegible] times in [illegible] [illegible] trict.

Zion's Advocate says of Maine Baptist churches: Rev. H. M. Hopkinson, who during the past year has labored with the churches in East Madison, Anson and vicinity, is [illegible] — Rev. Asa Perkins has entered into an arrangement with the East Machias church to supply them for the present one-half of the time, preaching every Sunday forenoon. In the afternoon he preaches at Machiasport. — Rev. W. O. Thomas has been so far restored to health and strength that at the earnest request of the Baptist church in Gardiner, he has consented to supply the pulpit for the present as he may be able.

On Sunday, Nov. 4th, the eleventh anniversary of the First Universalist Society of Ellsworth was observed by [illegible] anniversary meeting in the evening.

Berlin correspondence of the London News says that one of the tricks in the woolen trade of that city is to double the thickness and therefore to the eye the warmth and value of their cloth by gluing woolen "shearings" to one side of them. So skillfully is this done that even tailors are sometimes deceived. It is declared by the technical organ of the woolen manufacturers that some of the swindlers actually convert their unsold stock of summer cloths into winter cloths by this simple means. They preserve their appearance for a week or two, and then the "shearings" begin to wear off. The purchaser of a winter overcoat is left with only a thin and rather seedy summer paletot.

To the Honorable Judge of Probate for the County of Penobscot.

The undersigned, Executors of the will of [illegible] Butman, late of Plymouth, in said County, deceased, respectfully represent that the goods and chattels, rights and credits of said deceased are not sufficient to pay his just debts and charges of administration, and legacies by about twelve hundred dollars.

Wherefore your petitioners pray your Honor to grant them power to sell by license at public or private sale and convey the whole of the following described real estate of the deceased, as the residue would be greatly depreciated, by a sale of any portion viz: All the real estate of which deceased died seized, to satisfy said debts, legacies, expenses of sale, and charges of administration.

Said real estate is the same described in a Deed recorded in the Registry of Deeds of said County.

LETTER CARRIERS.

All letters are delivered free by carriers when addressed to a street and number. People should inform their correspondents of above and have their letters addressed accordingly.

Persons having their address at the General Delivery can also have their letters [illegible] it is much more convenient to have the street and number on, and they will be delivered earlier than if the same is put on at the office. Carriers make two deliveries daily, the first trip supplying the extremes of their routes.

Collections are made morning and evening in season for important mails—the boxes to be [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] boxes thirty minutes before closing mails at the office.

Hours at the Carriers' Window will be open for the delivery of letters from 8½ to 9 A. M., and from [illegible]

Any irregularities in the Carriers' Department should be reported to the office.

ENVELOPES.

No additional charge will be made for printing the name and request to return sent to the left hand upper corner of the envelopes furnished by the Post Office Department, (samples of which may be seen at the cashier's window) when ordered in lots of not less than 500.

A request for the return of a letter to the writer if unclaimed within thirty days or less, written or printed, with the writer's name, post office and State, across the left end of the envelope on the face side, will be complied with.

☞ The public are earnestly recommended to procure Stamped envelopes, with printed return request, as the expense is less, and letters thus endorsed, if not delivered to the person addressed, are returned to the writer free of charge.

First class envelopes of above furnished at $32.40 per thousand.

Stamps cut from Stamped Envelopes cannot be used to prepay postage. The use of such stamps is punishable by a fine of fifty dollars.

Stamped Envelopes spoiled in directing are redeemed at this office.
